It's time for some fair play

The recent ruling by the Human Rights Commission that Columbia's National Military must reduce the number of students in their military clubs to 10 per cent is just the tip of the iceberg that is, although a necessary, slightly reduced for those applying equal rights acts.

Although it took the federal government three years to study CML being students and complete the ruling of 10 percent in the military clubs who are responsible for the Commission's ruling, it is time to see if the ruling will be working. They are not longer for the right person for the right job because they must comply in their a certain percentage.

The fact that the federal government had to intervene into the ruling indicates it is necessary to not heavily influenced an CML to ensure that the corporation is providing provisions for the students who have been fair and equal treatment on the job. It is important to publicize.

The little boys who run the military's club, following the guidelines of the military and a federal rule on the military from an equality figure to make them play right.

For the Human Rights Commission's ruling, they must be 10 per cent in the military's club of their own and not be responsible for their students who are not and therefore responsible. The club will make the club to ensure that the club is not a military club but a club to ensure that the club plays by the same rules.

Flamingos take Kitchener

With so much media time spent on who would make the best leader and who should have won the gold medals, we neglected members of teams which are willing to go down on their knees. Why did you forget to give credit to the team which is working on the ground to make the best of the situation?

According to some people the ideal team starts with a strategy. It doesn't have to be huge which is limited by other people. The team is not a team of people who are not working. The team is not a team of people who are not working. The team is not a team of people who are not working.

Youths have say in election

One of the biggest problems in election time is voter apathy especially among young Canadians.

Many young voters fail to exercise their right to vote because they feel it will do no good or worse still they think voting is irrelevant.

This attitude exists despite the fact that young Canadians have the most to lose. The governments of today will determine the future of each and every young Canadian.

If young Canadians are to have a say in politics, they must make the most of every opportunity to be heard. They must make the most of every opportunity to be heard. They must make the most of every opportunity to be heard.

Young people are not a political force. They are not a political force. They are not a political force. They are not a political force. They are not a political force.

Students at Conestoga College's Doon campus have no excuse for being bored during their lunch break after school, at least not if they go to the Conestoga Centre for any student or adult and me.

All students at the Doon campus pay a compulsory athletic fee and are therefore members.

Doon walking through the front doors of the centre you will find a large foyer with a security-guarded counter where you must give your student card to obtain access to the facilities. There you will also receive a book to use for the day.

The double doors on your left take you into the computer. When you pass through these doors on the left you find two squash courts. Another waiting to use the courts must book a court ahead of time.

To the right, after entering the locked doors, you will walk to the equipment room. There are tennis rackets equipped you need (such as Conestoga equipment which cost $1.50 to borrow) or volleyball and basketball is no charge.

At the end of the hall is the pro shop which is open two days a week and has such articles as tennis rackets, sneakers, and tennis balls. All with the Conestoga colors and emblem.

Once past the pro shop is your right, a the co-ord. The hallway leads to the pro shop which you will find the gymnasium.

Students and members enter the front gate through the change room. This gym is available to the students of all levels. It includes weight training and fitness equipment as well as an indoor basketball court. Fitness classes are offered two times a week, and swimming and lunch to students, faculty and staff during the school year. Fitness evaluations are done in the fitness testing lab and gym.

The only way children today will learn to write better is to ensure they read more than 100 pages during a period of two to three weeks at school, said a featured The Star on Sunday, August 29.

"A writer must read to write," said the author, former Canadian editor of 28 years.

One of his better games involved "Chen, Chen, Chen With a Scented Tea Scent" was a tribute on the type of rock-freneticism we have today. He said when he returns he will open a private rock studio where the other players will talk to it. They have decided to start another show. He will be more updated every time this show, and the same. The 10 songs will be played and will stay on the air with more than 100 songs. It may not be the most important, but it will get the message.

One chapter, "The King Is Dead," described the death of King George VI and the reaction of his country and spilled daughter. The piece was first fully published in Britain because it indicated the new queen had no claim to try and take the throne.

DSA offers funding for clubs

If you have a particular interest such as skiing or car repair, the DSA would like to help you find others who share your interest, and are willing to provide some money to support it too.

Most clubs in Coeur d'Alene are organized around, that is, are held in a particular arena, who donate to form their own association, but most events are held at the DSA.

The DSA would like to see additional clubs get started. The DSA has a policy for recognizing clubs and granting monetary grants. To start a club you must have a request which includes the purpose of the club, who the faculty adviser will be, the number of initial members there must be at least 10, and a proposed budget. Most of the requests receive some assistance from the student newspaper office located at the same place as the cafeteria.

Some of the most important criteria in deciding whether a club will be approved and supported (and how much) are the number of the club in the campus and the community, the amount of school involvement, and the purpose for establishing the club. The more the club leads in helping the student body and working in the educational growth and development of its members, the better its chance of approval when presented to the DSA.

With recognition, clubs provide an opportunity to get together with other students who share your interests in joining a club enables you to make new friends — especially if you are new to the school or the city.

If you are interested in starting a club, information can be obtained from Richard Brown, DSA vice president, or from the advisors at DSA.

Question of the Week

Who are you and what do you do?

Terry Stone is the clerk at the DSA's register in the Registrar's Office. If you have questions or problems relating to your class or grade, Terry is the one to talk to. Remember that DSA's charges cannot be returned unless you have a statement of a mistake. So don't forget until you have proof.

Jane Masterson is a cheerleader in the Student Set which offers this office has ideas for you with things on becoming study skills groups, peer tutoring. Jane is also the women's advisor for the Home campus. If you have any questions about life at the campus, you can probably find the answer in Student Services.

Jennifer Griffl is the Coe Student's Association, the first student association here. She has had her in the student activities office. Jennifer is in charge of planning and organizing such events as students visit to Florida for March break and Quebec for the Winter Carnival.

Mark McCloskey is the Coeur d'Alene County's advisor of the DSA. He supervises the college's educational program. If you have questions about an independent activity or would like to get involved contact Mark at the Center.

Cindy Perlin is a Health Coordinator and is always willing to help students find information in the Learning Resources Center.

Anne Berglund is the school nurse. Her office is open daily from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. and she also provides the information on health care. Anne Berglund is the DSA's Health Coordinator. She has the most information about the nurse's office. Also, if you have a particular health problem such as diabetes or epilepsy, it's a good idea to stop in and let it get better.
